

Event title: ECPR Special Conference on the European Union

Location: Paris, France

Date: 13-15 June 2018

Abstract/Description:

In mid-June Tom Theuns organized two panels (Justice in Europe I and Justice in Europe II) at the ECPR special conference on the European Union in Paris. WP3 and WP2 both presented ETHOS-related research there.

Barbara Oomen presented ETHOS deliverable 3.2, co-written with Alexandra Timmer. Tom Theuns presented a paper on EU Free Trade Agreements and Democratic Justice (a revised version of which is forthcoming in the Cambridge Review of International Affairs under the title 'The Legitimacy of Free Trade Agreements as Tools of EU Democracy Promotion').

Orsolya Salat presented a paper entitled 'Representation, Recognition and Redistribution in Europe: a view from Hungary'.

Finally, Miklos Zala presented a paper with the title 'Justice and the EU: Why Reciprocity is not Enough'.

Audience:

A diverse audience of about 20 academics from all sub-disciplines of political science

Footnote:

The Standing Group on the European Union (SGEU) is broad based standing group affiliated to the European Consortium for Political Research (ECPR). The SGEU conference is a biennial pan-European conference on the politics of the European Union.
